NEW ARRANGEMENT IN BANGOR!

AN AIR-TIGHT

Parlor Cooking Stove,

With two Compartments.

—INVENTED BY—

C. WOODMACHER.

OF PENNSYLVANIA.

THE greatest invention of the age—the most extraordinary discovery of the present century—the like of which has never been known before—the production of centuries—the result of the labors of the most scientific men in the world—the 3000 inhabitants of Sweden were so delighted with it that in 1848—More than 30,000 were ordered of the Manufacturers in New York. In Stores it has received the highest premium every time it has been exhibited there would call the attention of the reader of the following short story to the Wonderful Cooking Stove—called by its inventor the Hot Blast Cooking Stove—which involves in it a principle in applying heat to the bottom of the vessel instead of the top or sides of it, as heretofore practiced in all other stoves—the result of the action of the heat on the bottom of the vessel causes the contents to boil or cook in one half the time that is required in the old fashioned way—and with one half the quantity of fuel—and the operation of baking is also much more perfect—Bread has been baked in this stove in three minutes without any cracks or order into the oven It was cooked by and will bake and boil all the pleasant swing of a coal stove—a large oven immediately over the ordinary fire—so constructed that the whole body of the oven is made to pass through the ugh it in coming to the chimney flue for the draft This arrangement secures to the contents of a good broil or roast in the oven without the labor usually attendant upon it It also has a large and radiating quality of heat—with large oven and convenient arrangements for cooking furniture —[Silver Medal

Hot Blast Air-Tight COOKING STOVE

N. B. DOWN'S

Vegetable Balsamic Elixir.

The Great Northern Remedy for Consumption!

ALSO the most effectual remedy in the world for Colds Coughs Whooping Cough Croup or Quinsy Asthma Pain in the Side or Stomach and all diseases of the LUNGS and LIVER

This medicine is purely vegetable, and is by far the most effectual medicine known for all diseases affecting the BRONCHIAL OR PULMONARY ORGANS

Its effect upon the patient is most marked, and differs from that of most medicines recommended for the same complaints, in the following particulars

1st—It never irritates the organs it should soothe —never dries up the cough, leaving the cause untouched—but first loosens the cough, increases the expectoration or spitting then removes the cause eradicating it completely from the system, when as a matter of course the cough ceases and the patient is well

2d—It never produces costiveness in the consumptive patient—on the contrary, it has a laxative effect and is a moderate cathartic We defy the world to produce a case of costiveness so inveterate but that in two or three weeks (the patient at the mean time having proper regard to diet) it will entirely remove it and produce a healthy action of the bowels

3d—It does not produce a dryness of the skin but a powerful promoter of sensible and insensible perspiration thus exciting by the pores of the skin those nauseous fluids and impurities of the blood the retention of which in the system is the precursor of DISEASE SICKNESS AND DEATH

We do not pretend that DOWN'S ELIXIR is a specific for all the ills that flesh is heir to, but we do say and can confirm by incontestable evidence, that for

CONSUMPTION,

And all all diseases of the lungs, liver and its pulmonary organs it is unrivalled—unequalled—HUNDREDS by have been snatched from an UNTIMELY GRAVE, and hundreds who delayed a long its use, have found in the advanced state of their disease that RELIEF FROM SUFFERING which they had vainly sought from every other source

This INVALUABLE MEDICINE is highly concentrated and put up in 2 oz and 4½ oz bottles, at 1s cents and one dollar per bottle, and each bottle warranted to contain MORE CURATIVE PROPERTIES than four bottles of any of the weak imitated pint bottle preparations of the day

We have received hundreds of certificates of a wonderful cures, from every part of the country many of which have been published and may be had gratis of any of our agents

Sold wholesale and retail by CURTIS & SMITH General Agents St Albans Vt, to whom all orders for supplies of the medicine should be addressed (stating the best mode of sending it)—also sold by agents in nearly all the villages and towns in the country

POLICE OF HUMANITY

It was our good fortune to day while visiting one of the public schools of the city of Salem to meet there the philanthropist John Ball Esq and at the close of the school, to spend several hours with him at the house of a friend

Some two years since a lady of wealth living in Salem became so strongly impressed with the wants and woes of humanity even in the christian city in which she resided that in conjunction with her brother she planned the noble enterprise of employing from their own funds, the services of a city missionary a ministry of good, a police of humanity within the limits of that city Providentially it happened that there was then living in the city of Boston a man of mature age and holy decree, whose delight it had been even in childhood to visit the sick and the poor and the distressed and to administer to their relief to the amount of his scanty means And late in life when immersed in business, his leisure hours upon week days and his spare hours on the Sabbath and frequently whole nights were devoted to the relief of the suffering These kind ministrations were the attractive pursuits into which his feet readily ran, and his mind was deeply interested This man was Mr J Ball,upon whose devotion to humanity many eyes had been opened, and whose peculiar fame had reached the lady already referred to He was engaged to take upon himself the duties of City Missionary of Salem and to stand as the Police of Humanity there not as a sectarian not for purposes of party, but upon the broad principles of a common brotherhood He was assured by his two patrons of a salary of $800 a year, and the generous aid of many of the citizens in carrying forward the plans for the relief of the poor and the reform of the degraded and the enlightenment of the ignorant He engaged in the great work His large and commanding form, and his benevolent countenance and his wise counsels and kindly words were soon familiar to those who before had thought they had no friend to care for them and no counsellor to advise them in time of difficulty and none to administer comfort in distress They were living in the atmosphere of despair and their children were growing up under the terrible discipline of parental and self abandonment Self reliance they were unacquainted with and self respect was in many, lost in temptation Mr B appeared the herald of a better condition for the poor He sought out the homes of all the vagrant and profane boys whom he found about the wharves and the streets, and through his instrumentality seventy of these boys have been provided with good places where they are under a good social and industrial influence and with fair prospects of becoming useful men and good members of society Pause, good friend, a moment upon this one fact of seventy boys who were tending downward through vagrancy, to degradation and crime raised to usefulness and the dignity of true manhood Think of them as heads of families in one condition or in the other—of the influence they would exert—of the effect they would produce upon our race and then express if you have figures for it the value of such services to a community Is it not a work worthy of the mission of angels and far out reaching all arithmetical calculations?

This however is but one branch of the subject Mr B omits no opportunity to pass,unimproved, of kindly checking all profane language by friendly teachings by word and by printed cards by little books and by repeated addresses in all the public schools So familiar has his presence become in the public schools and so kind and touching are his addresses that the children love to flock around him as around a loving father

He is often the legal counsellor of widows in the management of their small life estates and he is the guardian of orphans, while he frequently affords to these and to many in sickness and straitened circumstances essential aid without reducing them to the condition of legal paupers upon the legal charities of the city

He makes himself acquainted with the character and qualifications of those of both sexes who desire employment and readily finds employment for those who bear a good name He teaches the poor the evils they should shun and assists them in escaping from the hand of griping want He is made the principal Almoner of the charity of the wealthy and makes these charities widely beneficial both by wisely bestowing, and by suggesting new modes of contributing All partially worn garments, bedding furniture, &c, he receives and distributes He has enlisted capital in the erection of cheap but comfortable and healthy dwellings for those who can only pay a small rent

He has opened a free evening school, where tuition and everything is furnished free to adults and all others who may wish to attend — The school has been in existence during two winters for four evenings in the week, two for females and two for males The number of females attending, during the last winter was 303 of males 223, and the average attendance of females was 125, and of males 73 making 198 instructed every week This school is composed of those who could not attend the public day school and who without the advantages of this school would have neglected all attention to the subject of education There were congregated here men and women, some heads of families, who could neither read nor write One man who commenced by learning the alphabet with an earnestness which caused large drops of sweat to stand upon his forehead during the term learned to read quite readily in the reading books used in the public grammar schools of the city, and who by means of this school had unlocked to him the wealth of mind which hers treasured in books The progress of others, though less marked, was highly satisfactory and important The number of teachers in each department was about 25 They labored with great zeal and success in this work of charity and of love, and found their only, and we doubt not their yet ample reward, in the consciousness of having performed high uses to humanity, which being the highest of duties, gives the highest satisfaction We find among the names of the teachers, those whose families are not unknown to fame, and to whom it is no small fame thus to be known as helpers and co laborers in so noble a work What a thrill of delight must be caused from the knowledge that by the efforts of a single winter, a human mind has been illuminated with the lamp of knowledge, and taught to read the truths of the word of God—a soul plucked from the low debasement of sin and ignorance, and sent upward on its bright path of development for a high and holy mission of good What earthly compensation can equal that of the brightning eye, the earnest endeavor, the glow of awakening intelligence, manifested by those whose whole precious life had been such as to deprive them of the blessings of culture, and of the very key to the outer gate of knowledge? Yet the compensation these right hearted teachers have Their own self sacrifices as well as the room, and the lights, and the books and materials of the school were offered as free as the atmosphere they breathe, to those who feel the need of them whether foreign or native, old or young

Mr Ball is the great central sun of this school dispensing light and heat to all He governs with sincere affection His whole heart is in the work, and it is too earnestly awake for him to forget its importance or to fail in his endeavors to make it eminently useful upon the moral as well as intellectual natures of those who attend His brief addresses are described by those who have listened to them, as the teachings of a kind and wise father in the midst of his children, while they listen with the attention of those who have sincere and loving hearts and have a mutual interest in all they can acquire and apply There seems to be present in the school room an atmosphere of mutual affection and confidence, baptizing all hearts, and giving strength for greater progress Thus opening to the appreciation of the teachers, intellects of a high order, within pupils, which had thus far lain dormant, or been misdirected, and which when rightly cultivated may bless the world with its gold worth — While the personal sacrifices of the teachers inspire the minds of the pupils with a sincere confidence, and take away many of those ruinous prejudices which canker the heart

We have not space to make a practical application of this subject to our goodly city The facts stated are strongly suggestive and may you and all profit by them Who shall establish in Bangor a Police of Humanity?

Mr James Simmons, one of our most fruitful explorers, has described to us a panther lately seen by him near the head waters of the St John The animal was of a dark red color,with short strong legs armed with stout claws three inches in length His body was about five feet long When the boat in which was Mr Simmons and an Indian, rounded a point in the river the animal was seen within thirty feet of him, but walking leisurely away, he gained a thicket of alders before the explorer could reach his gun, which was in the stern of the boat — On examining his tracks, they found in the hardened mud, which a boot would hardly indent, a distinct impression of the feet and claws It was a place to which deer resorted to drink, and the panther was probably lying in wait for them The Indian was a little startled but our friend Simmons who has seen everything in the quadruped line, (except the elephant) only seemed anxious to make a closer acquaintance with his returning partnership

Emily Geiger, the Fair Patriot.

A Revolutionary Story founded on fact

BY T S ARTHUR

Continued

Gradually, now the day declined and, as the deep shadows mingled more and more with each other, a feeling of loneliness, not before experienced, came over the mind of Emily, and her eyes were cast about more warily, as if she feared the approach of danger The house at which she had proposed to spend the night was still ten miles if not more, in advance and as the shades of evening began to gather around the hope of reaching this resting place was abandoned for there being no moon there was danger of her losing her way in the darkness This conviction was so strong that Emily turned her horse in the direction of the first farm house that came in view after the sun had fallen below the horizon As she rode up to the door she was met by a man, who accosting her kindly asked where she was from and how far she was going

'I hoped to reach Elwood s to night replied Emily How far away is it

'Over ten miles and the road is bad and lonely said the man, whose wife had by this time joined him 'You had better get down and stay with us till morning

If you will give me that privilege, returned the maiden, I shall feel greatly obliged

The man promptly offered his hand to assist Emily to dismount, and while he led her tired horse away, his wife invited her to enter the house

Have you come far enquired the woman,as she untied Emily s bonnet strings looking very earnestly in her face as she spoke

Emily knew not whether she were among the friends or enemies of the American cause and her answer was, therefore, brief and evasive

'Your horse looked very tired You must have ridden him a long distance

'I rode fast' said Emily 'But still, I have not been able to reach the place for which I started this morning

'It is hardly safe for a young girl like you to take such a long journey alone, in these troublesome times

'I am not afraid No one will harm me said Emily, forcing a smile

'I am not so certain of that, child It is only a day or two since Greene passed here in full retreat and no doubt, there are many straggling vagabonds from his army roaming around whom it would not be safe for one like you to meet

As the woman said this, a chill went over the frame of the young girl, for, in the tone of her voice and expression of her face, she read an unfriendliness to the cause that was so dear to her heart She could not venture a reply

'Might I ask your name said the woman,branching in upon the anxious thoughts that were busying no less than through her mind

Emily reflected hurriedly,before replying,and then answered 'Ginger

The quick conclusion to which she came was, that, in all probability the woman did not know anything about her father as favoring the whig cause, but, even if she did, a suspicion of the errand upon which she was going was not likely to cross either her own mind or that of her husband

'Not John Geiger s daughter' exclaimed the woman

Emily forced an indifferent smile, and replied,

'Yes

I've heard of him often enough as a bitter enemy to the royalists Is it possible you have ridden all the way from home to day

Before Emily replied, the husband of the woman came in

'Would you think it said the latter,'that is to John Geiger s daughter, of whom we have so often heard

'Indeed' Well if she were the daughter of my bitterest enemy she should have food and shelter to night No wonder your horse is so tired, he added, addressing Emily,'if you have ridden from home to day And, no doubt, you are yourself hungry as well as tired, so, wife, if it is all ready, suppose we have supper

The movement of the supper table gave Emily time for reflection and self possession No more pointed questions were asked her during the meal, and after it was completed, she said to the woman that she felt much fatigued,and if she would permit her to do so, she would retire for the night

The young girl s reflections were by no means pleasant when alone She thought seriously of the position in which she was placed Her father was known as an active whig, and she was in the house of a tory who might suspect her errand and prevent its consummation After retiring to bed, she mused for a long time as to the course to be taken, in case efforts were made to detain her, when, overwearied nature claiming its due repose, locked all her senses in sleep

Nearly two hours after Emily had gone to her chamber, and just as the man and woman who had given her a shelter for the night,were about retiring, the sound of a horse s feet were heard rapidly approaching the house On going to the door a young man rode up and called out in a familiar way—

'Hallo, Preston! Have you seen anything of a stray young girl in these parts?

'Bill Mink' returned the former 'What in the world brings you here at this time of night?

'On a fool's errand it may be I received a letter from Loire, about an hour ago, stating that Geiger s daughter had volunteered to carry important despatches to General Sumter, that she had been on her journey some hours, and that I must overhaul her at the risk of every thing'

'It is not possible said the wife of the man called Preston

'It is though, and it strikes me that she must be a confounded clever girl

'It strikes me so too, returned Preston 'But, I rather think your errand will be that of a fool if you go any farther to night

Have you seen anything of the clever jade' asked Mink, in a decided tone

'Well perhaps I have, returned Preston lowering his voice

'Ah!' ejaculated Mink,throwing himself from his horse 'So I have got on the right track — She is here?'

'I did not say so

'No matter It is all the same, and hitching his horse to the fence, the young man entered the house with the familiarity of an old acquaintance

The sound of the horse s feet, as Mink came dashing up to the house awakened Emily The room she occupied being on the ground floor, and the window raised to admit cool air, she heard every word that passed It may well be supposed that her heart sunk in her bosom For a long time after the new comer entered, she heard the murmur of voices Then some one went out and the horse was led away to the stable It was clear that the individual in search of her, had concluded to pass the night there and secure her in the morning

The intrepid girl now bent all her thoughts on the possibility of making an escape An hour she lay with her heart almost fluttering in her bosom listening intently to every sound that was made by those who were around her At length all became still Preston and his wife as well as the new comer,had retired to rest and the heavy slumber into which both the men had fallen was soon made apparent by their heavy breathing

Noiselessly leaving her bed Emily put on her clothes in haste and pushed aside the curtain that had been drawn before the window — Through the distant trees it's light saw the newly risen moon shining feebly As she stood looking out of the window listening eagerly and debating the question whether she should venture forth in the silent midnight a large house dog who was on the watch where the master slept came up and laying his great head upon the window sill looked into her face — Emily patted him and finding him engaged in, seeming much pleased with the notice

No longer hesitating, the girl sprung lightly from the window, and, accompanied by the dog, moved noiselessly in the direction of the stable Here she was for some time, at a loss to determine which of the half dozen horses it contained had borne her thus far on her journey and it was equally hard to find in the dark the bridle and saddle for which she sought But all these difficulties were at length surmounted and she led forth the obedient animal Making a wide circuit from the house of possible Emily succeeded in gaining the road without awakening any one. Up to this time the dog had kept close by her side but when she mounted the horse and moved away, he stood looking at her until she passed out of sight, and then returned to his post at the farm house

The danger she had left behind made Emily almost insensible to the length of her journey and the room for fear in her heart Day had hardly begun to break when she reached the house of an old friend of her father s where she had intended to pass the night To him she confided the nature of her journey and told of the narrow escape she had made A hasty meal was provided for her and ere the sun posted above the horizon she mounted on a strong and fresh horse she was sweeping away on her journey A letter from a friend to a staunch whig residing twenty miles distant, procured her another horse

More than two thirds of the distance she had to go was safely passed ere the sun went down again, and she was riding along,in some doubt as to where she would rest for the night when three men, dressed in the British uniform came suddenly in view directly ahead of her To turn and go back would be of no avail So she rode on and on keeping a brave heart On coming up with her, the soldiers surrounded their horses, and addressed her with rude familiarity She made no reply but endeavored to pass on when one of them laid hold of her bridle Escape being hopeless, Emily answered the quest ons asked of her in such a way s she deemed prudent Not satisfied with the account she gave of herself,they told her that Lord Rawdon was encamped about a mile distant and that she must go before him as it was plain she was a rebel, and must probably a spy

Conclus n t morrow

We cut the following from the Bellows Falls Vermont Gazette —

WINSLOW'S BALSAM.—Notwithstanding our aversion to puffing as many do every thing that comes along in the shape of Patent Medicines still the fact is that we scarcely ever take up a paper but we see something of the kind,and reading the qualities which Winslow's Balsam of Wild Cherry is represented to possess,we have been induced to purchase a bottle of it for our own use and that of our family,and we must say that we have found it to be all that is represented We have repeatedly seen the good effects of this Balsam and are satisfied that it is no humbug

[From the Boston Daily Bee.]

From some little experience of our own we testify the superiority of the Balsam of Wild Cherry and we have been repeatedly assured by quite a number of our personal friends who have used it with success in pulmonary complaints the phthisic asthma night sweats etc that they regard it as one of the most beneficent remedial agents of the time

[From the Buffalo (N York) Spirit of the Times.]

This is one of the very few patent medicines of the day which we can commend with confidence to all who are afflicted with Coughs Colds or Consumption or who are predisposed to the latter complaint It has been used with considerable advantage by many families in town and in a few stubborn cases has proved highly beneficial effects

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

ONE WEEK LONGER.

AT the request of several citizens of Bangor, unanimously seconded by the large audience present at the Exhibition on Saturday evening, Mr Cassidy will exhibit his great National Painting of the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers,

Every evening this week, and on WEDNESDAY and SATURDAY afternoons, at 3 o'clock at the PANORAMA HALL.

TICKETS 25 cents—To be had at the Door Doors open at 7½ —Panorama moves at 8 o'clock precisely

☞ Will positively close on SATURDAY EVENING the 14th inst jy 10

☞ The following letter signed by Gov Kent Rev Dr Pond Judge McDonald and others, was handed to Mr Cassidy on Saturday evening

MR G W CASSIDY

Dear Sir —We regret to learn that you think of closing your exhibition of the Grand Panoramic views of the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers, this evening

We feel confident that when our citizens know that by spending a couple of hours with you they can obtain a clear distinct and accurate view, accompanied by a brief description of New Orleans with its Shops, Steamboats, Flatboats &c.—the battle grounds where Jackson won his laurels, of Natchez towering upon its 300 feet Bluff, of Vicksburg delightfully located on the Walnut Hills of Memphis where the Monument to perpetuate the memory of memory of Gen Jackson is to be erected, of Cincinnati, the Queen city of the West, of Pittsburg the greatest manufacturing place in all the West, with some 15 cities and villages of less note, of those wonderful mounds constructed by an unknown race of the Bluffs on the Ohio rising perpendicularly 240 feet, of a Sugar, Cotton and Tobacco plantation with the slaves at work of the numerous Islands in the Mississippi and Ohio, of the vast amount of business transacted on the river as shown by the ships steamers, flat boats ark boats lumber rafts &c seen in ascending or descending the rivers, of the plantation of Gen Taylor, of the farm, the residence and the remains of the old Log cabin, and the Tomb of the lamented Harrison and a great variety of other interesting like like objects and truthful scenery they will feel desirous of paying you a visit, and we should be sorry to have you leave without giving them an opportunity to visit you We can assure all who wish to gain a great amount of useful information in a short time, that a visit to the Panorama will richly repay them for their time and money

BLAKE'S PATENT FIRE-PROOF PAINT

THIS Singular and valuable Substance is sold in fine powder then mixed with linseed oil to the consistency of thick paint and applied with a brush and after an exposure of a few months to the atmosphere this coating becomes a perfect stone or coat of mail protecting whatever is covered from the action of the weather and from fire

It is a mineral substance and has been found to on analysation by Dr Chilton of the city of New York to consist of larger proportions of Silex Alumina Prot Oxide of Iron and Magnesia with lesser of Lime and Carbon It is used extensively for covering roofs of either shingles matched boards tin zinc sheet iron or thick paper, if on shingles have been on for years you have only to sweep off the moss and lint with a stiff broom and cover with two or three good coats and in a few months you have a perfect slate roof impervious to the action of the weather and fire This is nothing equal to it for steamboat and car decks for all kinds of iron as it forms a coating nearly as hard as the iron itself, and never cleaves off It should be used for everything that you wish to protect from fire and weather

In some places a spurious article has been sold as the genuine therefore purchasers should be careful to buy of authorized Agents
